UnLitigate

COLOUR MOOD BOARD · PHASE 1

Calm, in control, credible. A handshake, not a fight. Not a courtroom, not a charity, not a fintech.

Share of any layout: cream 54 · teal 30 · mist 8 · clay 4 · rust 2 · gold 2. Ink is text only.

Deep teal

#1E5F5C · Major · about 30%

Why it's here. Calm like blue, but greener, so it reads as resolution, not as a bank. Dark and slightly muted, so it feels quietly confident rather than soft.

Why not otherwise. Lighter teal looks like wellness and loses authority. Navy says law firm, the system we offer an alternative to.

Warm cream

#F7F2EA · Major · about 54%

Why it's here. Gentler than clinical white, so a stressed family feels at ease. Still clean enough for a mediation centre.

Why not otherwise. Pure white reads cold and corporate. Grey grounds read bureaucratic.

Ink

#1F2A2E · Major · text

Why it's here. A blue-black that carries all body copy with strong contrast, without the harshness of pure black.

Why not otherwise. Pure black feels like courtroom formality and sits heavy beside soft colours.

Mist

#D5E4DF · Minor · about 8%

Why it's here. A tint of the teal, so cards and info strips stay cohesive without adding a new hue.

Why not otherwise. A second pastel hue would split the palette and make it look like a template.

Clay

#C9683F · Minor · about 4%

Why it's here. The warm, human note and the "look here" signal: a bar, underline or large word, once per layout. Near-complement of teal, so the pair is vivid without being loud.

Why not otherwise. Red is adversarial. Saffron carries religious and political weight in India. Fills and large type only: cream on clay is roughly 3.4:1 by my estimate.

Rust

#8E4425 · Minor · about 2%

Why it's here. A darker clay for small accent text on cream, where clay fails contrast. Never on teal: the two are equally dark and blur together.

Why not otherwise. Never beside clay, where the two look like a mistake. Never a big fill: it turns heavy.

SFL gold

#F9C70F · Minor · about 2% · signal only

Why it's here. Our visible link to SFL and to liberty and persuasion over coercion. Small, on teal or ink only: the "An SFL Impact Project" lockup and one dot. Ink text on gold is about 9:1 by my estimate.

Why not otherwise. Yellow with extra black reads as warning tape and fights "calm, not combative", so no black beyond ink. Gold on cream is about 1.4:1, so never text or thin lines there. Not a second highlight colour, it would compete with clay. The "liberty" meaning comes from the SFL link, not from the colour itself.

Left out on purpose

Navy and gold. Court and law-firm formality.

Red. Aggressive and adversarial.

Pure black. Courtroom gravity, harsh against warm tones.

Purple. Reads as luxury or spiritual.

Cool greys. Cold, corporate, generic fintech.

Saffron and green. Reads as national or party branding.

In use (placeholder copy, no final logo)

UnLitigate

Mediation first

Your dispute doesn't need a courtroom.

[Short supporting line goes here]

UnLitigate

[Tagline goes here]

UnLitigate

There's a calmer way to settle it.

[Button label]

An SFL Impact Project

Rules: clay once per layout, fills and large type only · rust for small accent text on cream, never on teal · buttons are teal on cream and cream on teal · gold only on teal or ink, as a small SFL signal · no navy, gold, red, pure black or purple · check every text pairing for WCAG AA, test in dark mode, and get CMYK or Pantone matches before print · hex values are a recommendation to test with real audience members.